

PRESSING PLANS WITH LEE CHAPPEL MONROE

- To develop a pressing plan, look at the different elements of the block and where the darker elements are placed.
- Sketch your block and mark lines for which direction you want the seam allowance to be pressed.
- Pay attention alternating pressing directions so that you can nest seams that are next to each other.
- If your blocks' seams don't nest together, consider adding sashing to eliminate the issue.
- After sewing, set your seam with the iron first, then finger press according to the pressing plan, and give it a final press with the iron.
